It was a trip I'll never forget. One day my family and I decided to go hiking at the local mountain range. It was a lovely summer morning and my sister, Jane, was preparing for the trip with me. I still remember that she asked me: 'Hey, could you take my swimming suit from the laundry? I want to take it with me.' It wasn't cold but definitely not enough to swim but I decided not to argue. Oh, was I right. And so we set off for our destination.

After a few hours of hiking we found a bizarre lake with crystal-clear water atop the mountain and decided to stop by it and have lunch. After eating we headed back to the car, it was down in the field near the mountain fence. It took us some time to get to it. It was late evening when my dad announced the car had broken down and even he, a man with a degree in mechanical engineering, found it too challenging to fix, considering how exhausted we all were. So we decided to stay over night.

In the morning Jane woke me up, both of our parents were still asleep, and told me: 'I've found something cool near the mountain, want to check it out?' I agreed and she quickly rushed there. However, she was careless and slipped on the dew near some rocks and hurt her hand. It was bleeding badly. I rushed to the car, woke everyone up and told them what happened. My dad started searching for bandages but they were nowhere to be found - we had forgotten the first aid kit at home, how ignorant of us. Luckily, I remembered that Vance's suit was made out of some fabric that doesn't let any liquid through. I took it and wrapped around her injury tightly. It helped. My dad dealt with the car and we ~~went~~ hurried to the nearest hospital. Fortunately, my sister was fine after all that.

I don't even know what would have happened had I not brought Vance's suit with us.
