History at your feet.

• Where and why?

In the world of prosperity where the worries of the "Old world" are nowhere to be seen, what can actually be done to understand what kind of blessing your life is? Just put yourself together and go to Vyborg, a small historical town located near the past Russian-Finnish border. Before these countries integrated with each other it would only take 40 minutes to get from one state to another.

• What to be seen there?

What is so special about Vyborg you ask? First of all: the spirit of the old times. It is everywhere. From medieval castle to the buildings of the "Old world". Put yourself into the realities of the past. Drive a vehicle from the end of 20th century right to one of the museums or just go on a horse ride around the town. The citizens enjoy the style of their city so much that keeping it up is their main occupation and even in their free time you can see a couple dressed like medieval citizens with an owl or even falcon sitting on their right hands. • And more.

It is no joke. People are so committed to this life style that they even eat meals common to the old times. There are schools that teach people how to become a part of this and they are extremely popular. There is no clear separation throughout the city, like you can see a knight using software from the beginning of 21st century, but even that doesn't feel wrong.
